EDITORIAL

As graduation draws near and we prepare to step out into life we look toward the future with varying degrees of eagerness and apprehension. Upon becoming self-sufficient many persons believe that a break in the family ties is positive and perhaps necessary. That theory is an obviously inexperienced one for when they are out in the world trying to achieve this self-sufficiency they discover that the family is needed and appreciated more than ever before.

The home and family circle form a definite nucleus in every individual's life. When all is said and done it is the home to which one instinctively turns when trouble or perhaps just simple weariness besets him. It is only within the family circle that we may relax and know that we can be absolutely natural.

From time immemorial it has been the home that has made life worth living. Man's determined struggles against Nature's superior odds were all to make and keep his home safe. Then as he progressed he sought out and developed methods to improve and better it. In saying that "the home is the background of all civilization" it is probable that the speaker had in mind the possibility that Nature and her great superior forces could have cowed man from the beginning had it not been for the persistence his home instilled in him.

Beyond general comprehension is the great influence our family circle and home actually have upon us. All our opinions, ways of thinking and philosophizing on the world at large are due to something imbedded in our minds from infancy. Realizing the quantity of mental and spiritual wealth we have derived from our home, our own part in that establishment becomes clear. As we ourselves develop and cultivate new ideas, opinions and philosophies we should bring them home and, in turn, share them with the family as they have shared theirs with us.

Indeed, many of the conditions and problems facing the human race today cause us to hesitate and try to avoid unpleasant realities. Since this, of course, cannot be done, every man, woman and child needs a haven where he can be encouraged and reassured that the beautiful things in life do still exist and flourish in this, perhaps "ever so humble place"—home.

FROM A SENIOR'S DIARY

- February 8, 1936: First week at Barringer has finally come and gone. Schedule fine—Don't get up until 11 o'clock—Whatta life!—and after the 7th period, the school is practically all ours. But it's a pretty big place and the room numbers are peculiar to say the least.
- April 9, 1937: Have morning classes now. The new "freshies" are terribly small and childish. Glad there are two sessions.
- March 24, 1938: Tried out for Assistant-Editorship of Acropolis but June Beck got it. But who am I to begrudge her that pleasure!
- June 13: Saw the Domestic Science teacher today. She said she was sorry I hadn't continued cooking but I thought my cooking was sorry enough as it was, so I quit. Someone in the class has heard from one of the French boys we met on a trip to the S. S. Paris with Mme. Carleu. Every girl in the class has read the letter. Was mentioned in the Periscope this month—I rated three lines.
- September 16: 3A's have organized. Results—Biunno, President; Roy, Vice-President; Fleming, Secretary; Marinello, Treasurer.
- October 3: Officiated at a Latin Honor Society meeting Wednesday because neither consul was present (I didn't shanghai them!).
- November 19: National Honor's new members mounted the platform recently in auditorium. I remained in the pit this time, but next term watch my dust!
- December 16: Today the dance committees were organized. The decoration committee had a two-hour meeting to begin with. I can see where I'll have an acute case of breathlessness from inflating balloons—or crepe paper on the brain.
- January 28: Last night our Winter Carnival was presented in a transformed gym. The weather was very cooperative—it snowed to celebrate the event. Blue Jackets were a monstrous success in this initial appearance.
- April 20, 1939: Our blue and white pencils are proving happily popular. We have the Spring Fiesta and the 4B-4A Promenade in the offing this term. Our overjoyed (?) advisers are Mrs. Burke and Mr. Celiano.
- June 18: Officers for next term are Biunno (as ever) President; Molinari, Vice-President; Fleming (still) Secretary; Marinello (yet) Treasurer. Am looking forward to vacation although it will be the last summer one from B. H. S.
- September 25: Everybody has overnight bags under the eyes and is fog-brained—could it be that yearbook? We miss Mr. Gurley who is now retired, but we are becoming accustomed to seeing Mr. McGreal around and we like him a lot.
- October 16: My proofs came today. Hideous! They don't look a bit like me but my friends think they're flattering. Another thing, I had to make a down payment on my ring but it's worth it—150 seniors can't be wrong.
- October 30: Am recovering by degrees from our Hallowe'en Hop of Friday last. Wonderful time.
- November: Tryouts for Class Day—exhaustive—but we are unearthing some hidden talent (and I do mean hidden).
- January: The glorious, awaited, sad, regretted night arrived finally—have my diploma, a little more knowledge and loads of memories.

PROPHECY

Here we are at the end of the first half of the annual game between Barringer and East Orange. So far it has been a close battle with the Big Blues putting their all into every play. Only crystal gazer, Harry Chadwick, knows what the outcome of this game of 1950 will be.

Relaxing a moment we see many familiar faces; near us are seated Mr. and Mrs. Frank Tortoriello (the former Leah Megaro) and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Greason (the former Nancy Squire) proudly exhibiting Robert's most recent scientific creations to Robert Baird who has just laid the cornerstone of the Baird Dairy. Our attention is now riveted to a group of female autograph hounds. In the middle of this delightful gathering we discover Bill Piggott, current matinee idol. Standing near by admiring his golden tresses are Adele Schiller, famed hair stylist, and her assistants, Charles Trumper and Lena Girgenti. With them is Jane Gaitenby whose latest masterpiece is being exhibited at the Art Gallery.

Near this group are Josephine D'Asta, famed editor for "Mademoiselle" and officers of the D. A. R.: Ruth Flemming, President; Doris Wohl, Vice-President; Marian Beamer, Secretary, and Vera Corona, Treasurer.

Flash! Just some more photographers! Vincent Biunno and Lucy Striglia are snapping Doris Ponisi and Florence Cowan, noted ballet dancers, and the famous Russian dancer, Eugenia Hladky, accompanied by Salvatore Iannuzzi, ballroom instructor, and Alfred Padilla, rhumba dancer at the Trocadero.

The Big Blues pose patiently while Irving Bachelor paints a portrait, "The Silent Heroes".

We now turn to the world famous chemist, James Davis, barely recognizable due to the swaths of gauze encircling his head. He is attended by a nursing corps consisting of Josephine Foggio, Grace DiMaggio, Alice Pritchard and Muriel Krayl.

Sitting beneath us is Flora Cuniberti, hat check girl at the Meadowbrook where Al Zecca and his orchestra are featured. The members of the orchestra are Arthur Beckenthal and Elio Celeste, violinists; Anthony Corrado, trumpeter; Gerard Ceraso, drummer; Anthony DiGiorgio, saxophonist; Leonard Johnson and Clifford Zelif, clarinetists; Sophie Kozawicz, pianist, and the "Three Rhythm Girls", Gertrude Bannon, Rose Macci and Edith Sivoletta.

A rather athletic group surrounds John Ricigliano, rumored to be replacing Salerno, Big Blue coach. In this group are James Kevlin, member of the Davis Cup Team; Gerard Cassese, famous Yankee pitcher, who is under the management of Dan Colucci. William Crump, Ray Speer, John Garrett, George Rogers and Evelyn Mead are training diligently hoping to win the Olympic Games. Nearby are Vincent DeLorenzo and Val Dyer who spend their time playing professional football and the famous fencers, John Ciccone and Dave Hagenbuch.

The B. H. S. faculty is represented by Daniel Longhi and Angela Cicchino of the Biology department; Barbara MacLeod, Angelina Edwards, Joseph Fitzgerald and Paul Fernandez, History teachers; Dena Xanthos, teacher of etiquette; Angela Salvatore and Virginia Grosjean, Sewing instructresses; Lorraine Rosenstein, Music teacher; Grace Luland, Riding instructress; Josephine Rotunda, Gym teacher, and Joseph Andreola, Art professor.

Beyond the fence is a large sign advertising Crandell's "Super Super Lilac Scented Shampoo" advertised by Anthony Pasquale and Delia De Lorenzo.

In the crowd we find Julian Gordon, manufacturer of "Gordon's Gooney Gum Drops" with his foreman, Peter Niscivoccia; Rose Polifroni and Theresa Pasquariello, secretaries to the President of "Perkins' Pretty Pink Pills for Pale Pixilated People and Co."

Joseph Klockner, Republican candidate for 1951, is accompanied by Frank Zarillo, campaign manager. His adversary is Alfred Rosamilia.

The blare of a portable radio arouses us and we find Florence Wittenberg, Margaret Ameling and Ann Walrath still listening to Les Brown. Carol Perry, Ph.D., is with them.

Among other charming alumnae is Mabel Sykes, famous model with Dorothy Gialanella, her dressmaker. Donn Roy, Alfonse Russomanno, Benny Mastropoalo and Robert Tortoriello are escorting several elderly ladies. The fellows are employees of an Escort Bureau, a profitable enterprise operated by Amerigo Burruano.

On the left, causing a disturbance, we distinguish John Brady and Michael Monetti making speeches against those famous capitalists, Joseph Grasso and Alex Restaino. A squad of police, including Joseph Vecchione, Orlando Zecchino, George Leech and Gus Mattia, headed by Captain Vincent Ricigliano rushes up to stop the noise.

We also observe in this huge group Paul Sexton, A&P manager. Paul says that two of his best selling products are "Tilver Tup Bread", advertised by Albert Hill, the Lone Ranger, and Alan Kent's new hot dog creation. Other notable persons here are Matty Colonna and Robert Franz, foreman of the W.P.A.

Still having a serious consultation over a last period's injury are two bearded gentlemen. As they turn toward us we recognize Frank Molinari, dentist, his assistant Marie DiVincenzo and Frank Angelacci, horse doctor.

After years of conscientious work James Marinello was elected president of Newark's leading bank so, for the first time in ten years, he takes time off to attend a game. Other new appointees with him are Nestor Sherman and Phillip Goldhammer, trustees and Jacob Sobol, teller.

Just arriving are June Beck, "Miss America of 1950", and Jeanne Bellingham, now a manufacturer of cough drops accompanied by her assistant, Betty Hartford.

Speaking of celebrities, we hear that John Tunis has just won the Shmaltz Medal for the great discovery of the year, raising fried chicken.

There's silent Joe LaFera. He has recently been chosen best dressed man in America. Among other silent exotics here are Marie Galante, Dorothy Gilby and Victoria Gialanella who are giving stiff competition to Hedy La Marr. They are in the company of the "Human Sphinxes" Peter Muscio and Ray Carroll.

Roars of laughter attract us to Jerry Condurso and Belle Firtel, understudies for Burns and Allen. With them is that gem, Edythe Brown and her pal, Frances Banks. That grand comedienne, Betty Chin, is there too, still trucking with the masses at McKinley's.

Ruth Sprich, Germania Castelluccio and Ann Ashley, famous newspaper women, are up here in the press box with us.

Margaret Johnson, Beatrix Webb, and Alberta Hicks are escorted by Charles Hillman, boxer, Aaron Herrington, doctor, and John Rice, appendectomy specialist.

That cosmopolitan group over there near the 40 yard line includes Roscoe Croom, plumber; Theresa Meola, truant officer; Ira Rosen, shirt manufacturer; Fred Britchford, car manufacturer, with his commercial artist, Ursula Celentano; James Kafalas, restaurateur, and his soda jerker, Joseph Brescia, and waitress, Eleanor Gizzi.

Anna Nucci and John DelCorso, co-authors of the best seller, "With Malice Toward School", are busy collecting information for their next masterpiece. Much credit is due to Rae Bierwiler and Anne Bossert for their clever illustrations. Also noted in the literary world are Audrey Lee and Russell Lewis who are on the editing staff of the magazine, "Poetry".

We hear loud announcing and discover that a clever press agent has taken this moment to advertise the Adams Theatre where Michael and William Marinaccio and Claire and Dolly Ferrara are featured with Reynold Cochran and his famous dog act. Butcher Joseph Gialanella is enjoying the game with Anthony Conte, the loudest dresser since Bing Crosby. Scoutmaster Daniel Custode is conferring with Nick Guarino, horticulturist.

District Attorney Vincent DeMarco is violently discussing a case with Mary Del Guercio, lawyer, and her sister, Helen, telephone operator.

Joseph Hagel, nail file manufacturer, is demonstrating his product to James Mulcahy, teacher in a deaf and dumb school. Gertrude Lewis is escorted by William (Morris H.) Siegal, insurance salesman. Seated near them is Alfonse DeTrollo joking with Nick Bizzaro.

There's the whistle! The spectators hurry back to their seats and we settle ourselves for the second half of the game.

POETRY

GREENWICH VILLAGE

All races mingling,
Coins gaily jingling,
While vendors and swindlers
Try catching the eye.

The trains pass a-clacking,
The music ne'er slacking,
As youngsters and oldsters
Go shuffling by.

The rooms all are reeking
With smoke that is streaking
To bright-colored heavens,
This man-lighted sky.

Each horn is loud-tooting,
And pickpockets looting
Their victims who gaze at
The wonders on high.

Odd artists keep drawing,
The crowd, pictures pawing,
Are happy, or pensive—
Or flirting so sly.

An evening's a peach there,
You're let off the leash there,
With dancing, romancing—
'Till dawn lights the sky.

—Jane Gaitenby.

COUNTRY-SIDE

On soft, verdant moss—
Or dry, heat-parched, pebbly roads;
Beneath young birches,
Dainty laurel and hallowed elms;
Beside drowsy pastures—
Or storm-darkened white farmhouses
With bright hay-smelling barns—
I walk.
Do men still crowd the city streets?

—Jane Gaitenby.

HARVEST

Harvesters sweep thru a sea of wheat
Like a restless breeze
In the summer heat.

Ripened grain in a golden mound
To be threshed and stamped
On the hard, dry ground.

Men thresh the grain with a hearty laugh
And the sunlight gleams
On a mist of chaff.

Then at the end of the harvest trail,
They all give thanks
As the day wanes pale.

—Anne Bossert.

STAUNCH

Sailing over the wind blown sea—
Over the waves just you and me,
Feeling the salt spray upon our bow—
I the Skipper and you the Scow;
The years have been slowly marching on—
To dear old Davy,—you've solemnly gone.
I too,—have silently passed away—
As the setting sun, at the end of day;
But should drifting waves e'er touch your bow—
I'll still be Skipper, and you the scow.

—Russell H. Lewis.

SEAWORTHY

The boat rolls high to a darkened sky—
And beats the waves to a powdered foam,
The boat bows low to a weaving sea—
And catches the wind with masts full three,
Yet deigns not think of turning home.

—Russell H. Lewis.

COLOR JAZZ

(With apologies to Carl Sandburg)

White and red lights,
Green and blue ones too,
Weave in a spell of magic colorings . . .
Blown to bits by ultra violet!!
Smashed through a thousand pickets
in a scientific way,
Polarized light comes . . and goes . . .
silently creeping along,
as a snail over the southern moss.
Flare like a silver bullet on the path of a fleeting hare!
Glare you screaming comet!
Glare like the sun in the noonday sky,
fire! burning hot! gleaming white
Then two bolts of lightning clash in midair, and burst in a million pieces,
fading in the distance,
Dimmed is the blinding light.
Now a twinkle, as the faded beams cut their way across the blackness,
While the clock,—ticks,—ticks,—ticks,—
The soft, sparkling, colors rise,
to a high enchanted prism;
A thin, white beam stands alone,
in the ever lasting darkness,—
Light is restored, . . . then
Blown to bits by ultra violet!!

—Russell H. Lewis.

TAHITIAN SPELL

Caressing scents brought by a tropic breeze
Shadowy strand brushed by a summer moon
Dull rhythmic beat of pounding seas
Dark veiled secrets of a wild lagoon.

Softly come the tom-tom beats again
Through the velvet night.

—Grace Luland.

MOUNTAIN SCENE

Over around and up and down
the mountain ridges go—
From their top-most peaks on high
the torrent rivers flow,
On their ever beaming faces
lit by sunset low—
Is found the deep black darkest soil
where tall cool hemlocks grow;
Beneath the trees are seen and heard birds singing softly there—
And weaving through the emerald leaves,
a golden breeze so rare,
But curtains of dusk are falling now
for time has passed away—
And Nature with her love and beauty will return at the break of day.

—Russell H. Lewis.

RENDEZVOUS WITH A STAR

Through softest still of summer night
Across a velvet sky,
A falling star—a trail of light,
A saddened lover's sigh.

From unkind lips, a wish—a dream
For someone far away,
A wish upon an opal beam
Love's faith will not betray.

To soothe a lonely lover's heart,
A falling star—a kiss,
For those too many miles apart
A falling star means bliss.

—Grace Luland.

MUSICAL ORANIZATIONS

BLUE JACKETS

Barringer's new and popular orchestra, the Blue Jackets, was introduced to the school at our Winter Carnival last year. So successful was their debut that other classes followed suit by engaging them. Under the direction of Mr. Weiss the orchestra is improving steadily and acquiring a sizeable repertoire.

BAND

The band is probably most appreciated by the student body for its rousing marches and other stirring pieces at the football games.

ORCHESTRA

Our orchestra furnishes our assembly music with special emphasis on Christmas and Easter programs. At times even opera is attempted throughout the year for the enjoyment of all.

FENCING

Barringer's "Old Faithful", the Fencing Team, manages each year to add to its incredible string of victories. Last season for the eleventh consecutive year, the team captured the State Championship—this time without a single defeat. To all intents and purposes they expect to repeat the story again this season and try for additional honors in the National Interscholastics.

FOOTBALL

Football in Barringer plays a dual role for, besides providing many thrilling Saturday afternoons, it must support financially all other sports. All this means many hours of practice under the expert guidance of Coach Victor Salerno assisted by Mr. Charles Allen. One of the highlights of every season is the traditional Thanksgiving Day game between Barringer and East Orange. This year marked the forty-third contest between the two schools, one of the oldest rivalries in schoolboy games. As is the custom, the members of former teams of both schools met on the eve of the game for their annual banquet, an occasion almost as important as the game itself for it demonstrates the spirit of good fellowship maintained by both schools. Football is, of course, the major sport of Barringer.

HOCKEY

Hockey, the only competitive sport for girls in Barringer, is supervised by Miss Ethel Decker. Any girl who enjoys outdoor sports is eligible. This year four teams are participating, playing twice a week in the park.

TENNIS

Members of the Big Blue tennis squad had a very successful season last year in which they won nine games and lost three. Two of the most impressive victories occurred in the games against Bloomfield High and Paterson, East Side High. Since all of the team members were inexperienced, we think great credit is due them for their diligent practice and Mr. Buchanan for his patient coaching.

CAPTAINJack Apgar

MANAGER.....James Kevlin

TRACK

Few teams in the country can match the phenomenal record of the Barringer Track team; few classes can boast a Ray Speer, Captain of the 1939 State Championship Team, city champion in the 220-yard dash, member of 1939 quarter-mile relay team that won the championship of America and member of 1939 State championship mile relay which went to the Penn meet. Close on his heels is George Rogers who won his major "B" back in 1937 and has since added his Wreath "B" for State championship rank. These stars will not easily be replaced.

CROSS COUNTRY

During the fall, cross-country takes the place of track. In cross-country meets a distance of two and one-half miles is run requiring much stamina on the part of the runner. Again we find Ray Speer starring. Last year under the guidance of Mr. Payton, our team won the city championship.

CLASS SONG

It is time to say "Goodbye"
And we thank you for the memories,
Of happy hours we spent at work and play,
You gave us hope with which to greet each day
As now we part to go our destined ways
 To Barringer, Alma Mater
 We pledge our loyalty.

Yes, it's time to say "Goodbye,"
But we never can forget you
Nor all the dreams that you have made come true
You gave us these to keep our whole lives through.
So now in parting let us vow anew.
 To Barringer, Alma Mater
 We pledge our loyalty.

APPRECIATION

We find it difficult to express adequately our gratitude to our many friends who have assisted us in so many ways. We should like to thank the members of the office staff, especially Miss Rubin, for many kindnesses; Mrs. Blair for her help with our art work; Miss Decker, Mrs. O'Loughlin, Miss Robinson and Mr. Weiss for their patience in preparing us for Commencement; and Mr. Bruder, Mr. and Mrs. Carleu, Mr. Landolphi, Mrs. Stewart and Mr. Vogel for their invaluable assistance at our dances. And last but not least we extend our heartfelt thanks to Mrs. Cipolletti, Mr. Dann and Miss Kruessel for the encouragement and support they have given us with our individual problems.
